The first things that we exchanged were a pullover (mine) and a T-shirt (his).

The second things that we exchanged were a checkered shirt (mine) and a sweatshirt (his).

The last things that we exchanged were a hoodie (mine) and whatever the thing he gave me is because I don't know... And let's not talk about the fact that my hoodie is 3 sizes bigger than his size.

Here we exchanged BAGS

I lent her my favorite and she one of the bags she uses most often to go out.

Here we exchanged SWEATSHIRT

She put on a new shirt
that I love and lent me
a sweatshirt that was gorgeous on the back,
super colorful!

And finally, since I love them, we exchanged
HATS.

She gave me her very nice black hat and I gave her my favorite cap.

L'iniziativa dell'armadio condiviso è stata ottima per aiutarci a ricordare il tema dell'erasmus durante il viaggio e per fare in modo che affrontassimo le esperienze che ci sono state proposte con consapevolezza , facendoci realizzare che nel nostro piccolo possiamo aiutare il mondo.

Candice

During my experience in France I exchanged some clothes with my correspondent Candice. For example, in the first photo she's wearing my favorite hat while I'm wearing her favorite scarf. In the second one we exchanged our bags that we normally use to go out. To conclude in the last photo in addition to the hat and scarf I am wearing her shirt and she is wearing mine. Doing this we had a lot of fun!

- Interesting and very fun project, initially there was a bit of embarrassment in swapping clothes, but it was fun to find ourselves in "new clothes"

New experience, being able to swap clothes with girls you just knew. It was nice to be able to discover and wear their styles and ways of dressing and to make yours known

Shared Wardrobe

Cozza Manuela & Chassard Delenne Heloise

During the Erasmus experience in France, for the project «shared wardrobe», my correspondent Heloise and I exchanged some clothes:

- a striped short sleeve t-shirt
- two sweaters one fuchsia and one blue
- a pair of beige trousers
- a red long sleeve shirt
- a white short sleeve shirt

The last night, when we took the photos, I gave her the red shirt, she liked it a lot and I thought it would remain as a memory of that experience and the friendship we have.

SHARED WARDROBE

MY CLOTHES WERE:

- A pistachio green jacket big enough even for my host
- A simple black top
- A pair of light blue jeans (unfortunately they don't fit me)

JUSTINE'S CLOTHES WERE:

- A old tropical T-shirt (but I love it)

- A really BIG T-shirt (it was like a dress)

- A Polo t-Shirt (really cute)
