

Atarfe - Andalusia

TYPICAL FOOD

Gabriella Correa

introduction

Seafood and especially shellfish, meat, a wide range of cheeses, full-flavoured seasonings like paprika and saffron, and carefully selected wines round out the list of ingredients that are the essence of Spain's cuisine.

Every place you go will have its own local dishes. The most famous is probably paella, and the most popular tapa in the country could be tortilla de patatas .

Paella

The most famous spanish dish

It is the most scenic of all the dishes...and one of the prides of Spanish cuisine!

Shellfish are the protagonists of this delicious dish: mussels, calamari, prawns and scampi, but also clams, crabs or fish.

Tortilla de patatas About

The potato tortilla, or tortilla de patatas, is a typical specialty of Spanish cuisine. It is a sort of potato omelette, made with thickly sliced potatoes, beaten eggs and onion.

It can be consumed hot as a second dish, but also cold, as a tapas-style aperitif: in Spain, in fact, it is enjoyed in any bar or restaurant at any time of the day.

Gazpacho andaluz

Gazpacho is a cold soup originating from Andalusia. This dish has peasant origins: thanks to its freshness they consume it as a tasty and refreshing snack.

Gazpacho has many variations and can also be served as a cocktail or as a soup accompanied by onion cubes, toast, hard-boiled egg, cucumbers and tomatoes.

My favorite!!

Migas de Harina

Migas, or migajas (literally "crumbs" in Spanish), are a dish of Spanish and Portuguese cuisine whose main ingredient is stale bread.

They are typical of the central-southern Iberian peninsula, such as Andalusia, and in the Portuguese Alentejo and Beira.

Migas are a very popular dish among sheepman, who can make use of leftover hard bread in this way.

The end

There are so many good dishes that it is almost impossible to talk about them all... Spanish cuisine has really won us over with its different dishes !!

Thanks for watching !!
